AMUSEMENTS.

Paul Potter is reported to be at work upon a new play for Charles Frohman, which he will deliver completed in a very short time.

"Little Miss Sherlock Holmes" is the title of a new vaudeville sketch which Sheridan Block is presenting at Proctor's Fifth-avenue continuous house in New York this week.

"My Lady Daintily," Madeleine Lucette Ryley's new comedy, has proven such a London success that Charles Frohman intends to produce it in New York early in the fall.

"Hoyt's A Trip to Trampmont" is the somewhat plagiaristic title of a comedy drama in five acts just copyrighted by one Nat Reiss, who gives his residence as "the United States."

Manager Blumenthal, of the Lenox Lyceum, New York, has abandoned his efforts to give the Gothamites light opera and decided to fall in line with the popular craze for straight vaudeville.

May Yoh, the variety actress, who became Lady Hope by marriage with Lord Francis Hope, is now reported to be separated by only a feeble human life from the exalted title of Duchess of Newcastle, which she is said to be in very poor health.

The fourth annual lecturer of the Cercle Francaise de l'Universite Harvard will be Monsieur Gaston Deschamps, the well-known literary critic of the Paris Temps. He will sail for America early in February and will give at Harvard under the auspices of the Cercle Francaise lectures on the "Theatre Contemporaine."

"Miss Hobbs," the charming Jerome comedy seen in Indianapolis last season with Annie Russell, Charles J. Richman and Mrs. G. H. Gilbert in prominent roles, is soon to be taken upon the English provinces. So also is "Madame Butterfly," the little play made from John Luther Long's story in the Scribner Magazine, in which Blanche Bates enjoyed great success in New York last season.

William Botto, known as "The Louisville Plunger," son of Colonel John Botto, a wealthy distiller, recently married Maude Leroy, one of the first lot of chorus girls brought over from London by Manager George W. Lederer, of the New York Casino. Miss Leroy and Mr. Botto met while the former was studying at the college with "The Telephone Girl." This is Botto's third whirl of the matrimonial wheel of fortune.

Sir Henry Irving, according to the London Daily Mail, will be seen in London next April in a new play founded upon the St. Bartholomew massacre. The new piece will in all probability succeed "Robespierre" as the head of his American tour of the following season. No doubt, the people of Indianapolis will enjoy the pleasure of reading about the play's extraordinary success in other cities, without getting to see it for themselves, just as was the case with "Robespierre."

CUMBERLAND SALOONISTS

Granted Licenses by the County Commissioners.

The County Commissioners yesterday granted a license to Henry Greening and John W. Little to sell liquor at Cumberland. Their applications have been fought vigorously by residents of Cumberland and vicinity and a long remonstrance was presented. Both sides engaged attorneys to appear before the board and one whole day was taken up in hearing evidence. The saloon men attacked the validity of the signatures, alleging that they were procured through misrepresentation, it being said that Greening intended starting a road house, and that many of the remonstrators were of legal age and were not legal voters because of residence limitation. The names were carefully gone over and it was found that there was not enough names of legal voters to defeat the application and the licenses were granted.
